

Do I want to be an influencer?

It was a super boring school day. I was drawing into my schoolbook not listening to my teacher Mrs. Gianni. We were talking about future goals. Suddenly Mrs. Gianni asked me directly, "What would you like to become when you are grown up, Marlene?". I thought about her question for a few seconds and then answered self-confidently "I want to be an influencer".

The whole class started laughing at me and even my teacher smiled. Then she came over and whispered "You'd better focus on school and get a good job later".

When I came home, I thought about her words. Was she right? But then I encouraged myself. I will show the world that I can be whatever I want.

I started making up a list in my mind. What do I need for putting my idea into practice?

"First of all, an account with a gripping name. Should I start my career on Instagram or Tiktok? Of course, Tiktok, I also need followers and interesting topics I can talk about. Cooking videos? Lame. ... Dancing videos? I'm not good at dancing. ... Beauty Videos? Perfect!

Alright, then I have to buy a ring light for the perfect look and some makeup supplies. ... But I don't have any money..."

That was all too complicated and so much work. So, I changed my mind, I didn't want to be an influencer anymore. I decided to marry a rich man instead and live an easy life.

"Sounds like a plan", I said to myself very pleased and tired of all the thinking. What an exhausting day!
